

Handle with Care

Service dogs and their partners work as a team. They look out for each other. Sometimes a person's life depends on a service dog's quickness. The animal must always carefully obey his partner's commands.

The partner, on the other hand, makes sure the dog stays safe. The dog relies on his friend to tell him when the street is clear so they can cross. The partner makes sure the dog doesn't get his tail caught in the elevator door.

Some service dogs know the meaning of as many as 90 commands.
